

'Potential Conflicts' in Dump Use Plan

Refuse Station Report

There are some "potential conflicts that can be mitigated to some extent, but not entirely" concerning building of a garbage transfer station at Mussel Rock in Daly City.

Such was the consensus of a 100-plus page Environmental Impact Report released this week on the proposed construction of a joint-city garbage transfer station and public park at the city's current dump site.

Thomas H. Miller, associate planner for the city's Department of Community Development, said the transfer station did conflict with the park in some areas.

For example, convoys of garbage trucks depositing loads inside the station would present a hazard to park users — both pedestrian and motorists.

And because of the turning radius of long haul trailer trucks, coupled with the limited land area available, a planned ocean view lookout and parking area for 10 cars would have to be scrapped.

Odors from the transfer station might also be offensive.

Opposition Develops To Shop Center Near City Hall in Colma

The Colma Town Council Thursday officially began discussions of a proposed multi-million dollar shopping center next to City Hall, with the unveiling of a draft Environmental Impact Report.

Opposition to the plan was immediate — both from within City Hall and from concerned citizens.

Opponents declare they do not want to see the El Camino Real through Colma turned into a commercial strip, with blocks of retail stores, automobile companies and similar outlets.

And that's what some think might happen if the city allows a 10.8-acre commercial site to be developed on El Camino Real, as proposed by E. N. Maisel and Associates, a Chicago-based developer.

An EIR filed with City Clerk Frances Liston on Dec.

22, 1976, was discussed by the council at a public session Thursday after two earlier attempts to hold council meetings on the subject had to be cancelled because a quorum of the council failed to attend.

The report was prepared by George S. Nolte & Associates of San Jose.

Colma City Engineer Ed Smith authorized preparation of the EIR by Nolte. Maisel paid for it.

Exactly when that authorization was given, Smith cannot recall.

Records of the city clerk, however, reveal that a letter was received from the realty firm of Milton-Meyer Co. early in December asking to be placed on the Dec. 8 regular council meeting agenda to discuss the project.

'Green Thumb' Conci Honored

'AUGIE' AND PLAQUE

"Augie" Conci sits quietly next to the plaque naming rose garden in his honor as friends tell of many years of devoted service to Daly City.

By FRANK LaPIERRE
They call him the "green Thumb" around Daly City.

August James Conci, eldest son of the late Pietro and Faustina Conci, at 71 probably has planted more beauty around Daly City than Mother Nature ever did.

In recognition of his contribution to the city, a rose garden behind City Hall has been dedicated to "Augie."

The garden was started by Conci several years ago with the support of the late Bernard J. "Bud" Lycett, himself a rose lover, and the City Council and staff.

Today, the garden holds a wide variety of roses, and people from throughout the area come to visit the garden.

Augie has devoted his life to raising roses.

He once said, "The only two real loves of my life are roses and Daly City."

In 1930, while Augie was still operating the family nursery, following the untimely death of his father, he contracted with Daly City as a landscape consultant.

He has been with the city ever since.

His parents were immigrants from Northern Italy. On June 20, 1906, on the site of what is now the Dunn-Edwards Paint Co., Augie was born.

A sister, Diva, and brother, Emilio, are both deceased. Another brother, Pete, resides in Broadmoor and still operates a landscape company there.

The Conci family operated its flower growing business in then-unincorporated Colma (now Daly City) for many years, until the Junipero Serra Freeway sliced off a sizeable chunk of the property about 12 years ago.

It was called "P. Conci & Sons Nursery" and its primary crop was roses, especially a popular rose variety of the day called "Ulrich Bruner."

Augie's father died in 1924.

At the age of 18 Augie found himself in charge of the nursery and the head of a household.

In 1955, Augie became a permanent employee of the city when he was hired as superintendent of parks.

While still a consultant to the city, Augie designed and planted Marchbank's Park — the city's first public park — in original Daly City.

Since then, other projects that have helped transform Daly City from pig farms, cabbage patches and sand dunes, into attractive green belts.

Such parks as Westlake, Gellert, Westmoor, and a long list of roadways and green belts around the city, are to Augie's credit.

Nine years ago, the Daly City Civic Center won honors for the landscaping and building design.

The environmental award for "Aesthetic Excellence" reflected the conscientious efforts of Conci and the Park Division employees who devoted hours to planting the grounds.

Over the years, Augie has been a familiar sight, trudging around City Hall with bundles of freshly cut roses destined for vases on office desks.

Libraries Stumped by Requests for 'Roots'

By JANET PARKER

Alex Haley isn't the only one looking for "Roots."

San Mateo County residents are discovering that finding a copy of the best-selling novel is as difficult as tracing the family genealogy.

Librarians are amazed at the interest in the 587-page novel, by just about anybody who can read.

Bookstores report that they can't keep enough copies of the novel — which took Haley 12 years to research and write — on the shelf.

No one seems to know for certain why, but the book "Roots" and the eight segment television dramatization of the book that ends this weekend are becoming the "Gone With the Wind" of this decade.

The San Bruno Library has the names of 32 persons on a waiting list who want to read "Roots."

"It's more than any other book we've had," said librarian Mary Ann Morris. The only other recent book that came close, she said, was "The Final Days."

The library has two copies of the book.

If your name is at the bottom of the list, you might expect to wait eight months to read "Roots."

One librarian pointed out that the paperback edition might be published before names now on the reserve lists reach the top.

"At the Brisbane Library, 10 residents have placed their names on a waiting list to check out the library's one copy of the novel — and that's a lot of people for the little town of Brisbane, according to Librarian Dolores Gomez.

Mrs. Gomez — like many other librarians — said there was a waiting list even before the television program began last Sunday night.

People are apparently interested in recent years in reading books that deal with the search for the family tree, she said.

The Brisbane Library

even had a program last year on genealogy, and that may have aroused some of the local interest in books like "Roots," she said.

"There are so many sources for genealogical research in the Bay Area that people don't realize," she said.

In Millbrae, there are 35 names on a waiting list and there are 28 on a similar list at Burlingame's main and branch libraries.

Pacific Library Peggy Dorrance said that when books become extremely popular, library patrons are willing to wait it out on a list. The waiting list for "Roots," however, is one of the longest the main branch has ever had — 15 names.

San Mateo Librarian Ruth Weinstein said there are 22 reserves for the book at the main branch alone. She said she believes that the unusual amount of publicity given to Haley's search for his heritage is the reason that "Roots" has taken hold of the public.

"Interest in historical works has always been high," she said.

She said the library has a book rental service at 50 cents a book for three days. The rental library's three copies of "Roots" are almost impossible to get a hold of, she said.

"It's never been on the shelf," she said. "It's been gone since the day it came in. You just have to be lucky to get here when it's in."

A San Mateo bookstore reported that it has sold 500 copies of the book and since the television serial began has been selling about 15 copies a day.

At a San Bruno bookstore

Ruby Cuatan says they are constantly running out of copies of the book — even though it sells for $12.50.

"It's all been triggered by the television program and by people simply wanting to get a more in-depth look at black history," she said.

Whether prompted by the prolonged bicentennial celebration, by the overwhelming effect of "Roots," or by some other event, the numbers of people searching their own "Roots" has increased at the U.S. Archives Center at San Bruno in recent months.

An archives specialist in genealogy, Robyn Gottfried, said that in the past week there have been 15 to 20 people visiting the archives daily to research their family history.

"This past week has been heavier than normal," Ms. Gottfried said.

There is no way to tell if "Roots" and the television special has sparked the local interest in genealogy, she said. Only one of those who visited this week was black.

"It's a very serious business to a lot of them," Ms. Gottfried said. "Doing genealogical research is very time consuming."

Many of those who become involved are retired persons, she said, with lots of time on their hands.

The archives has federal census records from the first census in 1790 up until

A Tisket, A Tasket...

By RO LOGRIPPO
Post Staff Writer

Remember the maxim about not putting all your eggs in one basket?

If mama isn't around to remind you, your friendly merchant is — albeit his reasons for doing so are hardly moralistic.

Nor is his merchandise strictly the egg basket variety. Baskets in this post bi-centennial marketplace range from the practical to the whimsical and come in as many sizes and shapes as the shores from which they're exported.

You'll be seeing baskets in more than bath and flower shops within the next few months, too, if merchants selling their wares at the Winter Market Week in San Francisco have their way. The semi-annual event runs simultaneously at the Western Merchandise Mart, Showplace! and Designers Row which encompasses Jackson Square, The Icehouse and Baker, Knapp and Tubbs. Open only to buyers and dealers, the private previews attract members of the industry from throughout the Western states including Hawaii and Alaska. What they purchase during Market will be in the stores by springtime with price tags ranging from a few dollars to a few hundred dollars.

Although baskets aren't the only news at this season's showings, they're one of the hottest items at The Icehouse where The Post recently surveyed the situation. And you'll find them creeping into traditional and contemporary room settings with equal ease and even sophistication.

What kinds of baskets are modern-day peddlers hawking?

Are they the kinds mama used to take out the wash or dump the dirty clothes in? Or are they the handled variety the Easter Bunny takes credit for bringing into our homes?

They're all that and more.

Today's basket buyers will find woven containers with uses that vary from planters and sewing catch-alls to serving trays and fancy waste receptacles. They'll find pillboxes, picnic baskets, chests, urns, lamp shades and a myriad of others.

There are baskets for decoration, too. Hang them on your wall and they're works of art. Put them on your floor and they're interesting accessories. Leave them empty or fill them with your favorite paraphernalia.

And if you really want to carry the woven look to the nth degree, there are furnishings of rattan, bamboo and wicker. These reed designs include papasan "basket" chairs large enough to seat two, cylinder lounges with barrel shapes, and wicker wingbacks inspired by more traditional lines.

Moreover, there are tables, sofas and a score of other furniture pieces that owe their existence to artisans who have plaited and coiled their framework.

Although many of the baskets that make their way into Bay Area stores trace their origin to Mexico, many more come from the Orient. In the Philippines, basketry is a long-established art perhaps because the tropical climate yields an abundant supply of natural grasses ideally suited for making baskets.

Zening Imports of Berkeley, which displays at The Icehouse, features folk, cottage and commercial craft baskets from all over the Philippines in their line. "They are representative," says a company spokesman, "of the different and diverse areas of the Philippines."

Still other baskets, like those exhibited at Design Mart, are imported from Thailand, Ethiopia, Africa and China. Made for the working classes, the baskets in these countries were crafted for functional purposes.

Portuguese three-handled wicker grape baskets are finding their way into the U.S. through Regency House. Called mule baskets, they can be carried on the back.

From Japan come many of the very old woven goods featured at Pacifica Designs. Priced as high as $750, these baskets are often signed by the craftsman whose finished work is more of a sculptured art piece than a practical container. The firm has dozens of

BASKET BONANZA

Used as planters or just plain catch-alls, baskets like these can add a decorative touch to your home. Those pictured are relatively inexpensive retailing for $6 on up. Zening Imports has exported them from the Philippines and is selling them during Winter Market Week in San Francisco.

FROM SOUTHEAST ASIA

The traditional division of Design Mart at The Icehouse has many Southeast Asian baskets including these with intricately painted designs. Predominantly red and black, they cost (from left) $210, $221 and $143; the one in the foreground is from Burma and the other two are from Thailand.

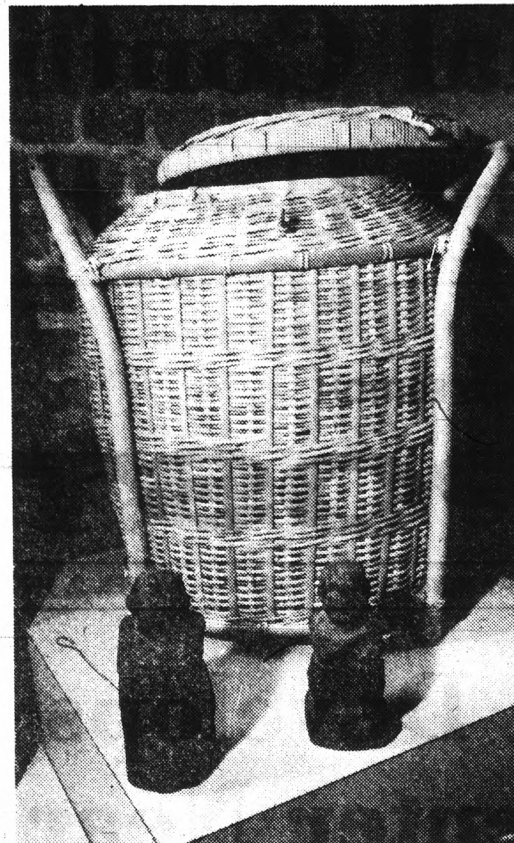

antique Chinese baskets with removable trays that are detailed with designs and finished with lacquer.

Although most of the baskets for sale today are natural, earthy tones, there are some from tribal areas that have been dyed with nut juices to give a reddish or bluish tint. Among the most attractive are those from Burma with intricately painted designs and lids.

What's causing all the hoopla over baskets?

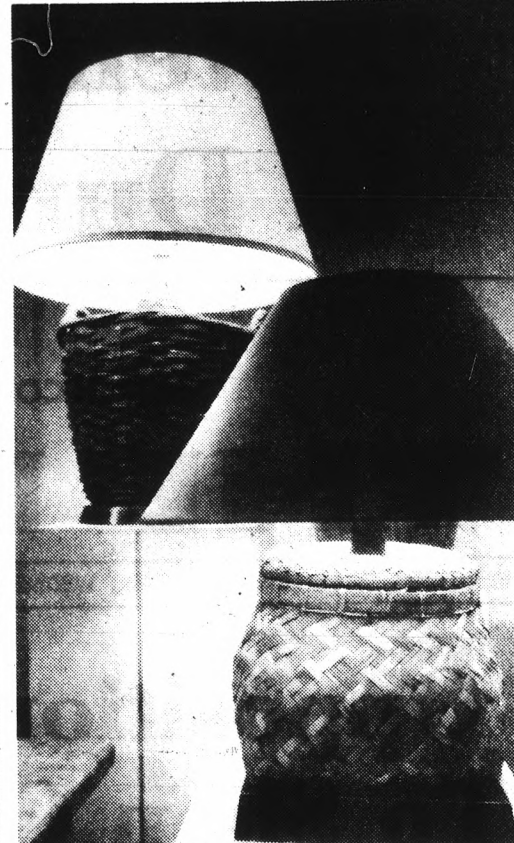

"The increasing interest in ethnic art," answers one basket merchant.

Whatever the impetus, baskets are certainly big business and will continue to be so while most of the offerings are still in the affordable category.

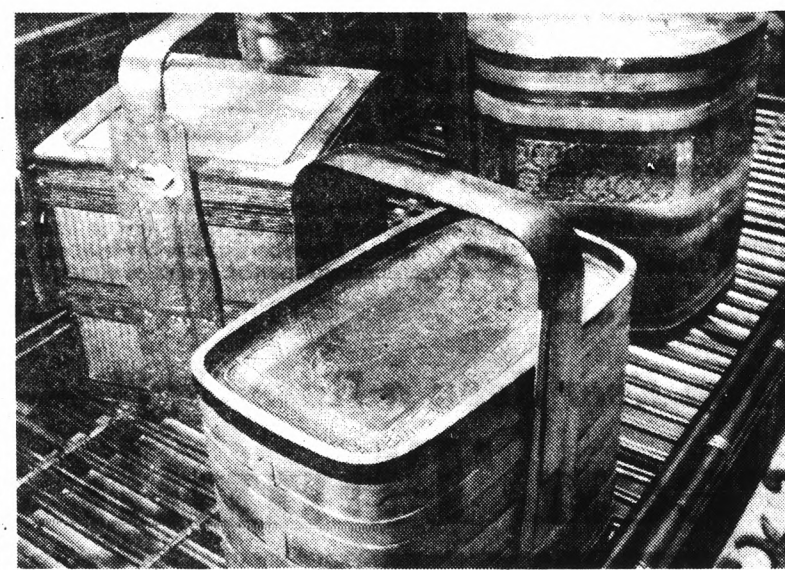

ORIENTAL HAMPER

This Oriental rattan basket costs $42 and makes a perfect hamper or storage unit. The carved, stoned figures at its base are rice gods from mountain province tribes on the northern island of Luzon in the Philippines. They cost $75 each. All are on display on the fifth floor at The Icehouse.

BASKETS TO BASES

Elliott & Associates used a Spanish wine basket complete with empty bottle to create the lamp at top; a grain basket from the Philippines forms the base of the other lamp which is topped with a rust suedecloth shade. Both cost $295 and are exhibited in space 118 at The Icehouse.

WOVEN TREASURES

These lacquered baskets are more than 100 years old and come from the People's Republic of China. Made by peasants for utilitarian purposes, they are the stacking variety and feature intricate workmanship. On display in the Pacifica Designs showroom at The Icehouse, they are priced at $350 (left), $435 (center) and $425.

On Dec. 8, representatives of the developer explained the proposal and, according to minutes of the meeting, were told that the council would "think it over and call a special meeting."

Then, on Dec. 22, — less than two weeks later — the 50-page EIR was filed with the city clerk.

Section 15061 of the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA) explains that such EIR studies are under contract to the "lead agency" (the responsible city) and that there should be no direct contract between an applicant and the EIR study engineer.

Once the EIR is filed with the city, the city must conduct its own in-depth analysis and study of the report. Such precautions insure a well-rounded and factual report is submitted to a council for evaluation, an expert in this field explained.

San Francisco attorney Paul Green, representing a client opposed to the development, said the manner in which the EIR was prepared and submitted apparently violates the spirit of the law.

Green, son of a former Daly City mayor, James Green, called the lack of a council quorum on two scheduled meeting nights "harassment tactics."

"The fact that these elected officials (in Colma) did not attend scheduled sessions to discuss this project on two nights was a gross lack of interest," Green charged.

He said he is now considering filing a class action suit against the city over the proposed development.

Specifically, section 15160 (c) of the CEQA has not been adhered to, Green claims.

That section deals with adequate time for review and comment on an EIR — not less than 30 days, nor more than 90 days.

They (Colma) also failed to notify principal agencies concerned with this project, such as the Colma Flood Control District, Daly City, Sanitation districts, water districts and nearby residents. I feel any meetings on this (EIR) are invalid," Green said.

A check of several agencies, including Daly City and South San Francisco, verified Green's allegations that the EIR had not been routinely distributed by Colma.

Smith, however, did in one case send a copy of the Nolte report to David Gehre, manager of the North San Mateo County Sanitation District.

In another case, Daly City Planner John Walker reportedly was unable to locate a copy.

Colma City Atty. Robert Cornell said property owners and residents in a 500-foot area around the projected site had not been informed of the EIR hearings "because we are not discussing rezoning or a variance."

The property is used by Pacific Nurseries on El Camino Real. It is zoned for agriculture use, and in order to build the commercial complex, the city under the law, first would have to change the town's general land use plan.

Following various public hearings on this amendment to the general plan, application for rezoning must be made and another series of public hearings held to discuss this issue, it was reported.

Councilman Paul Howe, has already voiced dissatisfaction with the development, charging it would touch off commercial development along El Camino Real and alter the aesthetics of the entire city.

Howe said he wants to keep Colma as it has been for almost a hundred years — a city dedicated to the burial of the dead and a memorial to the deceased.

He does not want mourners to have to file past a row of commercial shopping centers and retail stores, he said.

Proponents point out the development, which likely would house a huge K-Mart discount store and several smaller stores, would bring another $120,000-plus in tax revenues to Colma.

Lou Schenone, co-owner of Pacific Nurseries, said rising taxes have driven down profits and are forcing him to sell.

Further, according to Schenone, a development on the site would actually help conserve water, because his nursery uses millions of gallons of the now-precious commodity and a parking lot — commercial complex would use much less.

The higher property taxes — up some 300 per cent last year — is due to higher assessments by the county because of adjacent commercial development along Serramonte Boulevard, Schenone said.

"Someone is trying to get us to spot zone," Howe countered.

"If we're going to develop all along El Camino Real, I can't see where (the town) will benefit by it," said Howe, an employee of Cypress Lawn Cemetery.

sive to picnickers, planners feel.

The State Water Quality Control Board has ordered the Mussel Rock dump to be closed on or before Aug. 15.

Pacifica and Daly City use the dump for disposing of their garbage. Both cities jointly hired a consultant who is currently studying possible transfer station sites around the Daly City-Pacifica area.

Meanwhile, Daly City drafted the EIR for Mussel Rock and expects to submit it for action to the Coastal Zone Commission following public hearings on the matter, now scheduled for March 8, at 8 p.m., City Hall, Sullivan and 90th streets, Daly City.

Except for comments, the WQCB will not act on the planned transfer station, it was learned.

The project is under the jurisdiction of the Coastal Zone Commission.

Closure of the dump, after some 20 years of operation by the Daly City

Scavenger Co., was brought about by the threat of a massive slide triggered by an earthquake.

Miller said the planned transfer station is outside the slide and earthquake fault areas.

Geological engineer John Lowney, whose studies first directed attention to the possibility of a slide at the dump, reports the proposed building area is on solid ground.

Regardless, there is still some "risk of upset" explained in the EIR, a possibly significant risk, the report notes, if an earthquake strikes.

Noise levels, brought on by trucks operating in the area, could be significant when coupled with the planned public park.

Already, some residents of the area have expressed verbal opposition to the planned transfer station.

They claim that closure of the dump by the state is a chance to rid the area of the trucks and noise and convert the dump into a public park.

1900. Records must be 72 years old before they are released for public inspection, so more recent records are not available.

But, she warns, you can't expect to trace family history without doing a little homework.

She suggests consulting family members — especially the elders — to obtain names, dates and places. To get any information from the archives, an ancestor must have been connected in some way, sometime, with the federal government, she said.

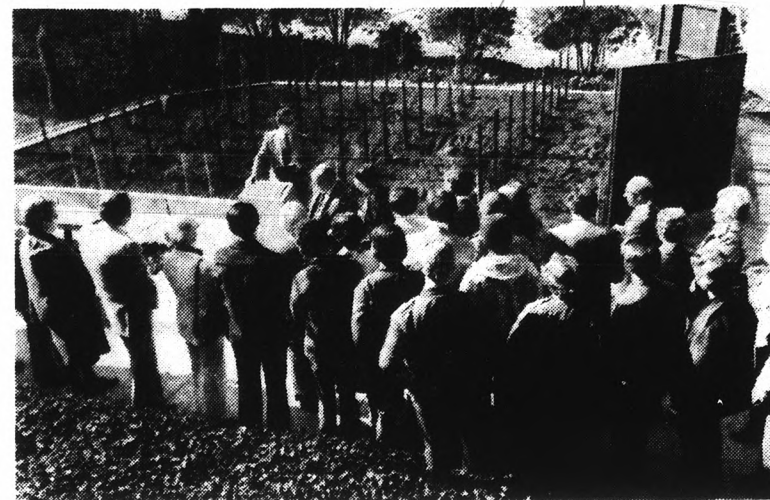

And then, it might only be possible to obtain some information simply because an ancestor was counted in a federal census.

The process for the beginner in genealogy isn't much different than it was for Alex Haley, she said. It's a matter of researching — using family albums, family Bibles and memoirs to obtain the information.

Bruce Carmeaux, a sales representative for Doubleday Publishing Co., was in San Mateo County bookstores Friday, taking more orders for "Roots."

"The sales are better than anything I've ever seen in my career in the publishing business and I've been in it 16 years," he said.

"This is a story of humanity. You'd have to be unconscious not to relate to this book," Carmeaux said while stopping in a San Mateo bookstore.

1973, but even so has been actively engaged in running the city's nursery.

This nursery has saved the city tens of thousands of dollars by raising trees from cuttings. City Manager David Rowe points out.

Monday, more than 40 of Augie's friends attended a quiet ceremony at the rose garden. Mayor Anthony Giammona told of Augie's contributions over the years and the people applauded.

Augie chatted with Dep. Consul General Maria Letizia Polastro of Italy, and his friends laughed as the two conversed in Italian. The friends applauded when Augie said he had never been to Italy, "because I love Daly City so much I don't want to leave it."

Others also praised Augie, who sat quietly, listening.

August James Conci once asked this reporter, "Did you ever see a rose cry?"

A rose cries in the early morning, just as the sun hits it. You can see a tiny tear form on the petals and slip away," he explained.

Like the roses, which shed tears when the warm rays of the sun shine on them, tears began to form in the eyes of Augie Conci as he rose to speak and the warmth of his friends enveloped him by the August J. Conci Rose Garden in Daly City Monday morning.

Temple Schedules 'Coping' Seminar

Congregation Beth Israel-Judea, the temple located on Brotherhod Way in San Francisco, is offering a seminar over a four-week period.

Beginning Feb. 2 at 8:30 p.m. and continuing for the next three Wednesday evenings, a series entitled "Coping" will be presented in the fellowship hall of the temple.

The series will deal with such topics as coping with husbands and wives Feb. 2; coping with children (adolescent) Feb. 9; coping with the liberated woman Feb. 16; coping with the single woman-divorcee death Feb. 23.

Dr. Frieda Porat will conduct the four-week seminar. As director of West Valley College's Mini-College in the psychology of interpersonal relations, Dr. Porat is a licensed individual marriage and family counselor in private practice in Palo Alto and San Jose-Saratoga.

She was the founder and director of the Center for Creativity and Growth in Palo Alto. Dr. Porat is the author of "Changing Your Life Style" and is completing two books in the areas of Humanistic Psychology and Effective Communication.

To her credit is the completion of a course of study in Human Sexuality with Dr. Masters and V. Johnson at the Reproductive Biology Research Foundation in St. Louis, Mo.

There is no charge for this series. Further information may be obtained by calling the temple office at 586-8833.

Congratulations to Serramonte's mid-year graduates! They are Annalisa Adams, Sandra Almadova, Uyganda Armstrong, Dolores Barazza, Sue Bosconillo, Lorraine Bonnici, Mark Bouchard, Cynthia Burn, Marsvenus Burns, Laura Cardarelli, Linda Chin, Edward Ciubal, Amelia Cruz, Anthony Cruz, Carisa Cruz, Josephine Cruz, Mary Davis, Michael De Leon, John Draven, Annette Evangelista, Lilian Fokin, Ludmilla Fokin, Ramona Franke, Teresa Geimer, Angelo Grekousis, Deborah Hall, Ronald Hicks, Roy Holie, Elizabeth Howland, David Husher, Rowena Innocenti, Elizabeth Martinez, Farid Meskin, Michelle Norman, Lisa O'Connor, Carlos Perez, Debra Pierce, Juanita Rocha, Feroza Satar, Aswin Singh, Debra Solidor, Joyce Steinberg, Ellen Tenud, Judith Trinidad, Laura Velasquez, Marie Veloso, Marianne Victoria, Manolo Visenio, Cheryl Weinberg, Mabel White, Yolanda Wilkerson.

EVERY YEAR, music students from all the high schools in the district have the opportunity to try out for "honor band" which is a band comprised of some of the best high school musicians.

This year, 12 Serramonte High students were honored by being selected for this band. They are Janice Lewbin, flute; Susan Aronovsky, flute first alternate; Ann Hardy and Glen Navor, bass clarinet; Curtis Dennison, alto saxophone; Tony Ramos, tenor saxophone; Joyce Boghosian, baritone saxophone; David Levy and Brian Conklin, trumpet; Eric Herzog, French horn; Katherine Milani, percussion, and Jeff Cooper, tuba first alternate.

Congratulations to these fine Serramonte musicians.

Serramonte is privileged to have a bowling club. The purpose of this club is to give students an opportunity to bowl in friendly competition. The club meets every Monday at 3:15 p.m. and bowls two games for $1.75.

The club has a variety of bowlers with averages ranging from under 100 to over 200. A 90 per cent handicap is used which gives every team an equal winning chance. On the last day of the league, a party is held in which every member who has attended regularly receives a trophy.

All students interested in joining the spring league of the Serramonte bowling club which begins on Feb. 7 should contact members Susan Aronovsky, Jean Unsworth or advisor Mr. Ted Tanisawa. Students may join as individuals or with a few friends and form of a team.

Have you heard? Serramonte is performing "West Side Story" as its spring musical. If you want to see talented high school students, you can see them in the Serramonte Little Theater. So keep it in mind. "West Side Story" is coming soon to Serramonte!

At the January meeting of Serramonte's P.T.S.A. (Parent-Teacher-Student Association) many things were accomplished.

Hal Shurgin, a Serramonte science teacher, was elected as one of the association's three vice presidents. Also, the annual Serramonte carnival, to be held on March 11-13, and the criteria for selecting a principal, were discussed.

The next P.T.S.A. meeting will be Feb. 9 at 7:30 p.m. at Serramonte High School. Thomas Mohr, Thornton High School principal, will be there to discuss Thornton High as well as Serramonte carnival plans.

Anyone interested in joining the P.T.S.A. should send a check for $1.50 to Serramonte High School, attention Mrs. Bugler, membership chairperson.

Sisterhood Slates Donor Dinner Party

The Sisterhood of Congregation Beth Israel Judea will hold its annual Donor Dinner on Feb. 5.

in San Francisco will be awarded that evening. Additionally, there will be door prizes.

Reservations for this evening are mandatory. Call Mary Titen at 333-4064 or Rose Rosen at 681-2893. The dinner will be held in Fellowship Hall and will be prepared by the ladies of Beth Israel Judea Sisterhood.

Scotty Campbell's Caters to the Stars

Catering to the Circle Star Theater performers between shows is a regular service of SCOTTY CAMPBELL'S restaurant in Redwood City. An entree often ordered by the stars is Double-cut Lamb Chops. Steak and Lobster dinner is another big favorite. Vivian Dunan and her husband Frank are frequent diners here. Recent guests include Willie Mays and a party of eight. Scotty Campbell's will be decorated for sweethearts on Valentine's Day, reports RICHARD TRAINOR. PHIL LEHR'S STEAKERY, on the lower level of the San Francisco Hilton Tower, Taylor Street entrance, is a great place to meet your favorite sports stars. In for dinner the other night was tennis great Billie Jean King. What's this we hear about ENRICO ROMANO zooming to Palm Springs to take tennis lessons? Understand the "king" swings a mean racket and may be tournament material before many months go by. Between sets, Enrico gives his mother, ENRICKETTA, a hand at their ROMANO'S Italian restaurant in Rockaway Beach, Pacifica. Dessert tip: Baklava is a home made after-dinner delight prepared by the chefs at YERVANT'S, ED CHALKAGIAN'S new Armenian restaurant in San Mateo.

BLONDE SONGSTRESS

The versatile Connie Stevens, who has starred on Broadway, in nightclubs, and in feature films since her first television role on "Hawaiian Eye," continues to entertain in the Headliner Room at Harrah's Reno, through Feb. 6.

Gust Prediction Dream Come True

NICK GUST, whom we've known since the days when he was night bartender at his NICK'S restaurant in Rockaway Beach, used to tell us that one day he would have a spread of restaurants in that very locality. Well, he was so right. Today, Nick owns THE MOONRAKER and CAPTAIN CHARLES restaurants which are located just 15 minutes from downtown San Mateo. THE TRI SOUNDS, a three-man combo that has been pleasing the dance crowds at the BAYHILL LOUNGE for over a year, can play just about any kind of music you want to hear. When planning a special affair, from weddings to bar mitzvah, our good friend JOSEPH GREENBACH, general manager of the VILLA HOTEL in San Mateo, will personally see to your party arrangements. Excellent room accommodations are also available for those staying over. The exotic CASTAWAY continues to be a prime attraction for diners enjoying a special evening out. Whether it's an anniversary, birthday celebration or a quiet dinner for two, The Castaway's staff makes every effort to provide guests with a memorable evening.

Bill Nokes Long Time Favorite

RUDY ISH, executive chef and major domo at the EL RANCHO INN in Millbrae, has featured BILL NOKES in the Mermaid Room for the past several years. This talented musician is one of the few entertainers on the local circuit with a permanent "home." TOM BOCCI designed the new dinner menu at MARTINELLI'S STEAK PIT in Millbrae. It features nightly dinner specials ($3.95) and many house specialties, including steaks, seafood and Italian favorites. Of the six "Especialidades de la Casa" (house specialties) at LA PINATA in Burlingame, Carne Asada (beef steak with guacamole grilled in herbs and garnished with refried beans and Mexican rice) is one of the most popular. Get out of the kitchen and into LYON'S RESTAURANT. With restaurant specials at moderate prices, it doesn't pay to eat at home. Enter Lyon's Sweepstakes. No purchase is necessary. The contest closes February 15 and every Lyon's restaurant has 12 winners. Being an Oyster Stew fanatic, this scribe frequently seeks out VINCE'S ITALIAN and SEAFOOD restaurant, where Olympia oysters are served. Comedian Henny Youngman, a frequent dinner guest at LEHR'S GREENHOUSE Garden Restaurant in San Francisco during his engagement at the Boarding House, broke up the waiters with hilarious one-liners.

Barney's and South Tahoe Nugget Packed

Seems it is springtime in the Sierras. Last Saturday night the crowds at BARNEY'S and the SOUTH TAHOE NUGGET, both at Stateline, were wall-to-wall with happy visitors enjoying "Entertainment the Nevada Way." The casino restaurants were also jammed with hungry diners. When making a trip to South Lake Tahoe, take along the refund coupons which are available at some of the restaurants advertising in "Bright Lights." If you live in the San Mateo area, drop by 1417 El Camino Real and see KAY. Coupons are free. Live entertainment is also an attraction on weekends at BERTOLUCCI'S in South San Francisco. Presiding at the organ is DICK MAUS, a veteran musician with a considerable repertoire. Steaks and Chicken Unique is one of nine Garden Restaurants, located in the huge TANFORAN PARK SHOPPING CENTER, currently honoring the 50 cent discount coupon found in today's "Bright Lights." Worth 50 cents off on any food purchase over $1, the coupon is valid only Monday through Friday, after 4 p.m. Budget-conscious diners shouldn't miss this bargain.

Hearing Slated on Mountain Park Plan

A public hearing on the proposed master plan for the 1,252-acre San Bruno Mountain Park will be held March 3 in South San Francisco.

The San Mateo County Board of Supervisors scheduled the hearing for 7:30 p.m., but has yet to select a location.

In a report written by the late County Parks and Recreation Director John T. Brook Jr., the development cost for the project is estimated at $3,158,000.

The master plan designates the park center near the north entrance off Guadalupe Canyon Parkway. That would be the location of a park headquarters building, an interpretive center, a maintenance facility, 50 family picnic tables, one group picnic area and parking for 115 vehicles.

Also proposed is a south side center located off Hillside Boulevard. Development there would include a small ranger station, 10 family picnic sites, a group picnic area of 30 tables, a day camp facility and parking for 35 vehicles.

In addition, the plan proposes a system of loop trails of various lengths, with three major vista points to be developed along the mountain's main ridge.

The report proposes that a system of bicycle, equestrian and foot trails 15 miles long connect all facilities within the park.

This is it, the final countdown for the "Heart of Fashion" Luncheon and fashion show, to be held on Saturday in the Grand Ballroom of the Fairmont Hotel in San Francisco.

All ready, albeit a bit nervous, are the ladies who will be walking down that long elevated aisle wearing the latest in fashions from Livingstons!

Among those waiting from those moments in the spotlight are models Mrs. William Becker, Mrs. Aldo Cavallero, Mrs. David DeCot, Mrs. Berc Eldemir, Mrs. John Lauderdale, Mrs. Gary Lund, Mrs. Lawrence Minnex, Mrs. Richard Mudge, Mrs. Dalziel Murtagh, Mrs. Robert Pardini, Mrs. John Merryman, Mrs. Harry Quinn, Mrs. Richard Schneider, Mrs. Thomas Scholz, Carrie Fahey, Patricia Fambri, Shawn Murray and Susan Sariotti.

Mrs. Harry Lindner and Mrs. Robert Drucker are chairing the benefit and Mrs. George San Pietro has handled the publicity.

RIORDAN GUILD'S International dinner and games night will begin with no-host cocktails on Tuesday at 7 p.m. in Chaminade Hall, 175 Pheland Ave., in San Francisco.

Daly City's Mrs. Ronald Robles, publicity chairman, reports that the dinner committee has been working hard preparing for this "adults-only party" and the program sounds like it will provide a fine evening.

Mrs. Joseph Dovichi, chairman, and Mrs. Donald Gilliam, co-chairman, have planned an evening of excellent food and entertainment. Guests will be invited to eat all they can from four international menus while a strolling musician will play requests on his accordion. Hostesses, dressed in colorful international costumes will circulate among the tables to assure the guests of a graciously served dinner.

The $3.50 admission includes the dinner and games, and an opportunity to win some prizes.

Mrs. James O'Sullivan or Mrs. Joseph Dovichi will accept calls for reservations until Friday.

A SPECIAL DANCE worship service will be performed February 13, by Ann Owens in the Social Hall of Lakeside Presbyterian Church, beginning at 9 a.m., according to Mrs. Mary Assily, chairman of the worship committee of that congregation.

Mrs. Owens has had 15 years of dance and choreography experience with the San Francisco Dancer's Workshop and the Eaglet Theater Choreography Workshop and is the regional publicity director of the Sacred Dance Guild and director of the Auburn Sacred Dance Choir.

Mrs. Owens has received special training in sacred dance through study at the Pacific School of Religion, the San Francisco Theological Seminary and is now a workshop instructor through the University of California at Davis.

The unique service will be the first such program offered at the Lakeside Church and members of the community are being invited to attend and enjoy this experience with the regular congregation.

MRS. NANDA STEWART, chairwoman of the North Peninsula Auxiliary of Florence Crittenton Service fashion show, "Hearts and Flowers," has named the members of her committee and announced the names of the models who will be wearing the chic fashions from The Little Daisy in Serramonte.

Mrs. Jerry Stinger is the chairman of the modeling committee and she will be directing Mrs. Alvan Beall, Mrs. Edward Macklin, Mrs. Nanda Stewart, Mrs. Bunny Lycett, Mrs. Hubert Sandefur and Mrs. Harold Toni.

The Fashion show and luncheon will be held in the Westlake/Clubhouse at noon February 12.

AN AFTERNOON of Music with Phyllis Ryan is being planned as a fundraiser by the members of Mary's Help Hospital Guild.

Mrs. Fran Gaffigan is accepting reservations and donations of $3 per person to the musical, which will be staged in the Stewart Brady home at 3:30 p.m., Feb. 13.

Refreshments will be served and guests are being invited to contribute to the

Gunshot Fatal To Psychiatrist

Dr. Ronald Singer, 40, a practicing psychiatrist in South San Francisco who for several years was with the San Mateo County Health Department, was an apparent suicide by gunshot in his auto, parked at the curb in the 1200 block of El Camino Real, shortly before noon Friday, police report.

An off-duty San Carlos policeman, Bernie Lightner, witnessed the suicide, police said.

Lightner reported that at about 11:44 a.m., he was entering his own car at the curb when a compact car pulled up to the curb behind him. The officer had just seated himself in the car when he heard the blast of a shotgun.

Looking into his car mirror, Lightner saw the victim lying back in the seat.

Going to the scene, he found the victim dead and a shotgun lying beside him, police said. The car windows were closed. The gunshot entered the victim's temple at close range.

Police said that investigation disclosed that the victim had purchased the gun an hour earlier at a shop on El Camino Real.

San Carlos. No note was found.

Police said that Dr. Singer resided on Wessex Way, San Carlos.

Associates at the Region I North County Mental Health Center of the San Mateo County Department of Health and Welfare said that both Dr. Singer and his wife Melodee have been employees there and that Mrs. Singer was still on maternity leave.

They moved into their new home in San Carlos just weeks ago, associates said, after residing in Belmont for a year after selling a home on the coastside. They had two children, a daughter, 4, and their son, born in June, associates said.

Dr. Singer was with the North County Medical Center from July, 1970 until late summer of 1975, then practicing in the East Bay until about six months ago when he began private practice in South San Francisco at 160 Country Club Drive.

In October, 1973, the Singer home, a hexagon chalet built on a hillside in the El Granada area, was the site of an open house, being one of four residences which were considered distinctive to seacoast living, and the focus of the 10th annual open house tour sponsored by the Coastside Parents' Nursery School of Half Moon Bay.

GIANT CLYDESDALES COMING TO SAN MATEO COUNTY

This eight-horse hitch, the Budweiser Clydesdales, will be on view Feb. 14 through Feb. 20 at various San Mateo County locations. The one-ton giants of Scottish ancestry will appear at Bay Meadows from 1 to 8:30 p.m. Feb. 14 (no admission charge); at Hillsdale Shopping Center 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Feb. 15; at Bay Meadows (open) from 6 to 8:30 p.m. Feb. 15; at Tanforan Shopping Center 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Bay Meadows (open) from 6 to 8:30 p.m. Feb. 16; at Serramonte Shopping Center, Daly City, 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Bay Meadows (open) from 6 to 8:30 p.m. Feb. 17. Also at Stonestown Shopping Center from 1 to 4 p.m. Feb. 18 and from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Feb. 19; at Bay Meadows (open) from 6 to 8:30 p.m. Feb. 19 and from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Feb. 20. Area distributor Matagrano's Inc. announced the coming of the draft horses used originally both as power to get grain to the brewery and for delivering the brew. Budweiser personnel trained Clydesdales to pull a huge wagon as celebration of the repeal of prohibition. Since then, horses have appeared on TV, trotted in the Tournament of Roses and Macy's Thanksgiving parades, and averaged 40,000 miles a year of travel, moving from city to city in specially built 40-foot vans. They average 2,300 pounds each and stand six feet tall at the shoulder.

Being Made More Effective

Police Communications

By 1979, a San Mateo police officer's call for help will be heard from Daly City to Menlo Park — if he's on the right channel.

Police communications are currently being improved to provide new and far more effective coverage, using grants from the federal government and other agencies.

The entire county will be covered with a new network system which will enable instant communication between patrol cars and officers in all cities and the county.

"We're going to put the criminal out of business, or very close to it," said John deRussy, assistant San Mateo city manager. He is chairman of the City Managers' Communication Task Force which works with the Area Disaster Council, lead agency in the project.

San Mateo will be the first city in the system. It has been working on a new police communications center for sometime.

Recently, the cities of San Mateo and Foster City, approved the concept of a joint operation. By late fall, the two cities will have one communications center, operating out of San Mateo.

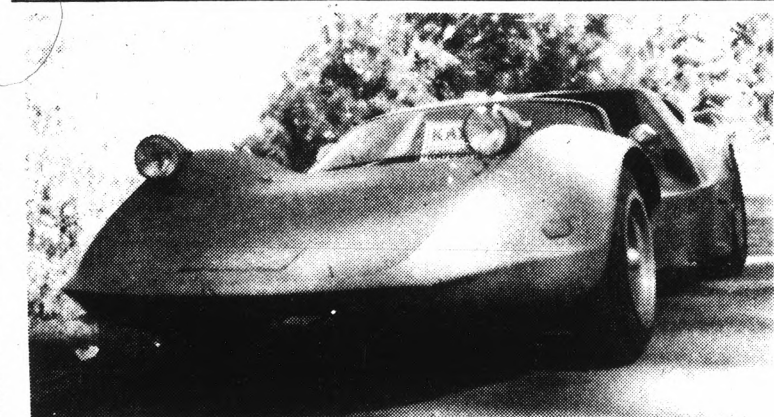

When completed, the countywide network will speed communications, enabling officers to talk to each other directly through their hand-held transceivers without going through a central dispatcher. Police communications will, of course, continue to be monitored by cities and the county.

There will also be direct car-to-car communication. By turning a button, police in San Mateo will be able to talk directly to officers in Daly City or Menlo Park.

The countywide system will cost $1.4 million, of which $894,000 will come through the federal government's Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA); $38,555 from the state; $283,722 from the county; and $283,722 from the cities.

Most of the work on the San Mateo system has been under the direction of Lt. Kenneth Brooks, the police department's communications director.

ELECTRIC CARS AT SERRAMONTE

Congress has approved an appropriation of $160 million over the next five years for "research and development" of electric vehicles. The Peninsula Chapter of the Electric Auto

Association has already stepped into the future with its collection of battery operated cars which will be on display Feb. 3-6 at Serramonte Center, Daly City.

FUN RUNS

Fun Runs are being sponsored by the Pacifica Parks, Beaches and Recreation Department, the next to be Feb. 6 at Terra Nova High School at 10:30 a.m. Distance to run on that day will be one-half mile, one mile and four miles.

Just a Simple Plaything

This charming two-story frame dwelling is a miniature of the historic James Johnston Homestead on the Coastside. The 33 by 40-inch replica was completely handmade by Mrs. Glenn Stirm Jr. of San Mateo who finished the 400-hour project by doing the wiring herself. Martha Stirm's dollhouse features 8 rooms, 25 casement windows, 50 shutters, 11 doors and 2,600 shingles. It will be awarded during the Little House Tour at the Airport Marina Hotel in Burlingame April 16 and 17. Whomever wins it will have to think small when it comes to furnishing it, although some scaled down decor will be included. The four poster brass bed at right with crocheted coverlet and the trunk were anonymous donations from someone on the Coastside. Another county resident made the living room rug and the matching curtains which have still to be hung. Proceeds from ticket sales will be used by the Johnston House Foundation for restoration of the 123-year-old dwelling which toppled down during strong winds this fall. Tickets for the dollhouse can be purchased from Mrs. Stirm, the San Mateo County Historical Museum, Dollhouse Factory in Menlo Park or Shelle's Miniatures in San Mateo. The house will be displayed at the museum from Monday through Feb. 16 and at the Hillsdale Shopping Center Feb. 17 through 21. Subsequent exhibits have been planned at all five Levy Bros. stores in the county.

Relieve That Headache Without Popping Pills

By MICHELLE CARTER
Post Staff Writer
"You have a headache? Terrific!"

Not the usual greeting you expect when you arrive at an interview with a throbbing head thanks to the pressures of snarled traffic and a late start. But then this interviewee is Dr. Howard D. Kurland, and he has something more than compassion to offer — he has a cure.

He went right to work on my headache. He took my left hand in his and buried his right thumb, bent at the joint, in the flesh between my thumb and first finger. Immediately I felt a numbing sensation in my fingers and mild pain that radiated up my arm. He continued for 20 or 30 seconds pressing in and out with his thumb and then turned to my right hand to repeat the procedure.

But there was no need. A strange cloudy feeling had replaced the throbbing in my head, and in a few seconds I felt terrific. No headache, and no skepticism either.

I was prepared to be skeptical. It's a reporter's job to be skeptical, unbelieving, questioning, and I was ready to give the good doctor the third degree after reading his book "Quick Headache Relief Without Drugs" (Morrow, $7.95). I was even mildly delighted when I felt the headache coming on while driving into San Francisco for the interview.

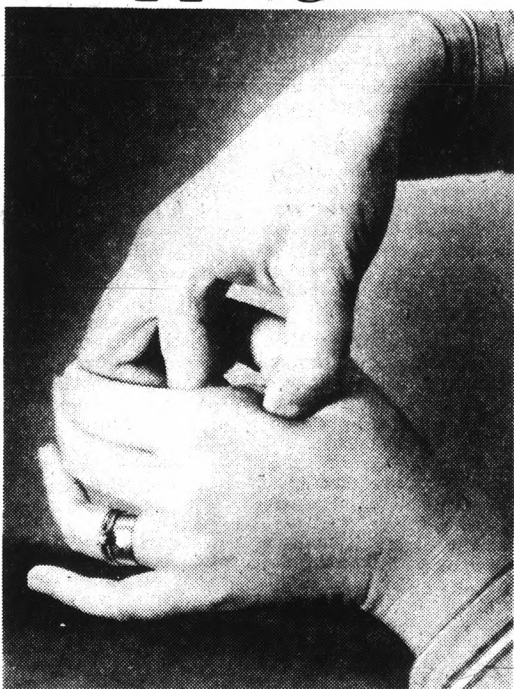

But I was completely disarmed as soon as I sat down. I mean, how do you question the theories of a man who has already proved his point on your very own head?

My confusion amused him. "I've been doing the same thing all the way across the country. Everyone's skeptical, as they should be, until I can get rid of their headaches."

A receptionist at KGO-TV in San Francisco admitted to suffering with a headache for 36 hours before volunteering to play guinea pig to Dr. Kurland's stubby thumb. Her euphoria was fantastic testament to the powers of acupressure — the technical name for the wizardry of Dr. Kurland's thumb.

For four years now, Dr. Kurland has been spreading the word about acupressure and its potential for cutting back on the 100,000 lbs. of aspirin that Americans consume every day. Last year he read a paper on it at a convention of psychiatrists in Anaheim. ("That's where shrinks go when they want to get together — Disneyland.") They all scoffed and credited suggestion for the instant relief.

"But when I invited several of them to come up and do the same thing, they couldn't do it. . . . Doctors now are accepting it, partly because there is plenty of hard scientific evidence to show that these techniques do work."

LET YOUR FINGERS DO THE CURING

Thumb pressure on a nerve ending next to the bone in the hand is the first step in relieving headache pain.

As Dr. Kurland explains in the book, acupressure works on the same theory as acupuncture, but because no needles are involved, acupressure is something people can do for themselves to cure their pain. Dr. Kurland has isolated the pressure points that affect headache pain and gives the reader some specific guides for finding those points.

People who suffer from sinus headaches have another set of points for relieving that particular kind of headache. The first points to use are those between the thumb and first finger of each hand. If the pain isn't relieved, then you must apply pressure to points just outside the eye rim on either side of the head.

Although he is quick to point out that acupressure is not the answer for everyone ("It's just one medical technique among many; it will not replace western medicine."), he believes that almost anyone can find relief with it.

"The biggest problem is patients who don't want to give enough pressure on the points. Their heads hurt so much they don't even want to touch them. But it seems ridiculous that they won't endure 30 seconds worth of pain to relieve 36 hours of migraine agony."

Dr. Kurland believes the greatest value of acupressure is that it eliminates the need to take a drug to alleviate the pain. He emphasizes that aspirin is not the harmless drug that most people believe it to be, nor are the aspirin substitutes such as Tylenol and Datril. All of them are toxic substances, he says, that can damage the body with continuous use — the kind of use that people with week-long migraine headaches are likely to resort to for relief.

Shots Scatter Crowd

At least four shots were fired into a crowd of people outside a South San Francisco dance hall Sunday when two rival youth gangs clashed following a fist fight.

Miraculously, none of the shots, fired from a .38 caliber revolver, struck the some two dozen persons outside Morales Hall, 209 Miller St.

Police said slugs smashed into parked cars and the building as innocent bystanders fled for their lives.

The shooting episode was believed to have been sparked by an earlier incident in which two juveniles from opposing gangs — San Francisco and San Bruno — battled it out with their fists inside the hall.

Police were called to the scene shortly before midnight and arrested a 17-year-old San Mateo County boy.

About an hour later, as people left the building, four shots allegedly fired by a member of the San Bruno gang rang out.

Police apprehended six juveniles, including two juveniles, a short distance away.

All were believed members of the San Bruno gang.

Arrested and charged with intent to commit murder and conspiracy was Anthony Ray Garcia, 24, 1128 Broadway Ave., Burlingame; Jose A. Duran, 22, 140 Linden Ave., San Bruno; and two unidentified juveniles.

A police department spokesman said the reason for the shooting and fist fight were still unknown.

Earlier, in an unrelated incident about 9 p.m. in front of Morales Hall, a Burlingame man was arrested for felony drunken driving after the car he was driving allegedly struck two men standing on the side of the road talking.

Arrested was Michael Stanley Tolosko, 56, of 301 Rollins Road, Burlingame.

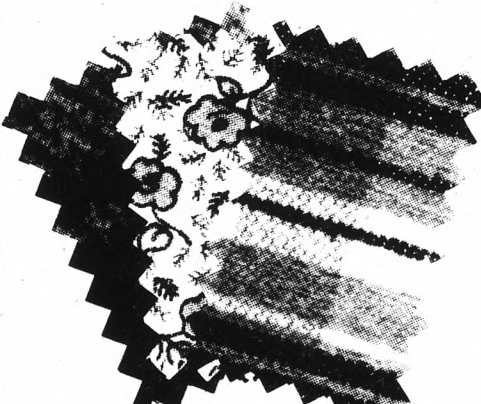

NEW HEALTH AGENCY

Word from Washington activating the new West Bay Health Systems Agency will set this group of San Mateo County representatives to work along with their counterparts in San Francisco and Marin counties. New Federal law requires the agency to oversee hospital construction and prepare a three-county health plan. Seated from left are Supervisor James V. Fitzgerald of San Bruno; Mary Lou Behmyer of South San Francisco; San Mateo convalescent home operator; and Charles Range of Woodside, director of Jew Health Clinic in East Palo Alto. Standing from left are Francis Pacelli of Daly City; Richard Daniels of Belmont; Sequoia Hospital administrator; Ralph Bunje Jr. of Foster City; Desi Rodriguez of Redwood City; Anthony Hoffman of San Mateo; and Ron Marshall of Foster City. Twenty-one other appointees from San Mateo County are not pictured. First meeting of the group will be at 7:30 p.m. today at 225 West 37th Ave., San Mateo.

SSF Police Reorganizing for Crime Fight

By JANET PARKER

A two-year reorganization of the South San Francisco Police Department, aimed at placing personnel in the most effective positions for fighting crime, is expected to begin by March.

Police Chief James Datzman said the most visible change will be a reduction in, and possibly elimination of, the six motorcycle patrol positions in the traffic unit.

The proposed changes in the department were the result of a five-month survey conducted by the state Peace Officers Standards and Training (POST) office.

Datzman released the POST survey results Tuesday. He said he essentially agrees with all 16 of POST's recommendations and will ask a departmental task force to consider their merits.

The survey results come just as Chief Datzman is compiling crime statistics for 1976. Although the entire crime report will not be released until next month, Datzman said there was a 21 per cent increase in the number of major crimes in the city last year.

"POST is suggesting that we may be able to do the job more effectively in stemming crime and maintaining the service level by using personnel in a better fashion," Datzman said.

He said a departmental task force will be formed by March to study the POST survey results and establish priorities for the survey recommendations.

The department, Datzman said, should be well on its way to implementing portions of the reorganization effort by June.

"I would foresee us implementing some things within a month or two," the chief said.

Datzman asked POST officials to provide the free survey service in November, 1974. The state department was ready to begin the survey last spring, but by that time the city was knee-deep in budgetary problems and the impending departure of City Manager Ed Alario, Datzman said.

POST senior consultant Don Beauchamp finally began the hours of interviews and research in August and handed Datzman the results in December.

The consultant had studied department budgets, crime reports and crime projections — all the information about the South San Francisco department he could find.

The total reorganization package would cost the city

$4,734. The appropriation to elevate a police sergeant to the position of lieutenant would have to be approved by the City Council.

The major changes recommended by POST include:

- Eliminate the motorcycle traffic unit and reassign the officers to regular patrol teams.

- Establish an administrative assistant position in the police chief's office. POST recommends transferring the supervisor of the existing traffic unit to that position.

- Establish a career development program for uniformed officers to periodically rotate positions and take on new assignments.

- Conduct a workload studies of the investigation division and the 37-man patrol force.

Other recommendations involve reassigning certain personnel to other divisions for better use of their services. The report also suggests retitling each of the three department divisions for uniformity with neighboring police departments.

Datzman said POST's recommendation concerning the traffic division "could be subject to the greatest community misunderstanding."

In 1972, the department added three motorcycle patrolmen to the existing three-man traffic division, using funds from a state grant.

However, the condition of that grant, Datzman said, was that the officers could be used for nothing other than traffic patrol.

When the grant expired in 1974 and the positions were written into the city budget, the traffic crew remained isolated from the rest of the department's patrol officers, Datzman said.

Now, POST officials are saying that keeping six sworn officers in the traffic division is a luxury the city can no longer afford, Datzman said.

The chief pointed out that the average officer response time to calls increased from three minutes in 1975 to 3.47 minutes in 1976. There also was a 12.4 per cent increase in phone calls to the police dispatcher.

By reassigning traffic officers to the more general patrol division, some of those statistics may be decreased or at least maintained, he pointed out.

Traffic duties then would belong to all patrol personnel. However, Datzman said he favors maintaining at least one motorcycle for use in congested traffic situations.

The new administrative assistant, if implemented, would handle some responsibilities now performed by the chief and the three captains. Those include grant administration, permit and business license review and background investigations.

The promotion of a sergeant to lieutenant, costing $4,734, would create an additional watch commander.

This, Datzman said, would assure that someone will be available to monitor emergency response calls and to receive public complaints at all times. Presently, vacations and illnesses often mean that the commander's duties must be filled by someone else in the patrol division.

Datzman said that a patrol force work study is already scheduled free of charge through a program at Golden Gate University in San Francisco.

The City Council will meet with the POST consultant Feb. 23.

Chief Datzman said the council must approve only the financial aspect of the proposal, although he plans to discuss any major department changes, such as the elimination of the traffic division.

In retrospect, the trading of George Johnson for a number one draft pick seems like a reasonable move by the Warriors, although I was somewhat upset at first, that they couldn't get a body to replace Johnson immediately.

It had been rumored that Milwaukee forward Bob Dandridge might be available, and anytime you can pick up a high percentage shooting forward who is young, but experienced and is capable of picking up 25 points, 10 rebounds and four assists a game for you, it is not just a reasonable move, but a very good one.

But, alas, it turns out Dandridge wasn't available and that, after much investigation, the Warriors discovered that Johnson wasn't worth as much as they had imagined he might be, and that, in fact, they did well by getting a high draft pick for him.

And, if one wanted to rationalize it, Dandridge wasn't the real power forward for which the Warriors have been searching, anyway. Although, once you get by that rationalization, you remember that this might be Rick Barry's last year and that Jamaal Wilks has been talking about playing out his option and going to Los Angeles, or quitting altogether. Then, a high scoring forward — of power or not — begins once again to look good. But there is no use crying over spilt milk that wasn't really spilt to begin with.

ACTUALLY, in our humble opinion, the Warriors at this point need a play-making, hustling, defense-oriented guard (like Norm Van Lier) more than they need a power forward.

Derrek Dickey is on the way back, and Dwight Davis is rounding into form after an early season "leg," but there is still nobody who can or is willing to give the ball to Rick Barry. Phil Smith and Charley Johnson are shooters, Gus Williams isn't always sure what he is, Marshall Rogers is a rookie who, in college, was used to everyone giving the ball to HIM (although I still think the Warriors are eventually going to have to have his great shooting potential), and while Charles Dudley is superb coming off the bench and making things happen both offensively and defensively (but mostly defensively) and in playing the team concept, he is still not the prototype play-maker.

Meanwhile, back to the Johnson deal. Its benefits can be calculated at two levels, the statistical and the psychological.

The psychological level, of course, is immeasurable, although if one is to take the word of so-called insiders, it can in this case be considerable, not only because of the removal of Johnson himself, but because of the domino effect it could have.

Johnson, so it goes, was unhappy at sharing his back-up playing time with rookie Robert Parrish, and his attitude was spreading to other benchmen who had theretofore almost happily accepted their roles as intrinsic to winning basketball.

Then, too, his leaving makes more clear-cut the role of Parrish — and starting center Clifford Ray — and gives him more playing time, thus speeding his development and confidence... and with his getting more playing time and more confidence his teammates get more practice in how to play with a scoring center, a dimension with which they have been unfamiliar in the Warrior scheme of things. And, if nothing else, say the insiders, the trading of one of coach Al Attles' favorites demonstrated to everybody that they are indeed vulnerable, and thus may invoke more hustle and dissolve some complacency and bring back the team concept on which the Warriors had cashed in on so handsomely.

STATISTICALLY, the Warriors apparently have gained a decided, if not a dramatic edge.

At the point Johnson was traded, the three Warrior centers were averaging per game 20.2 points, 16 rebounds, 3.6 blocked shots (which put them among league leaders), 2.4 assists, 1.7 steals, a field goal percentage of 51.6 and a free throw average of 63.5.

Now, using the Pacini Magical Calculator and Extrapolating Service and computing what Ray and Parrish would have averaged per game up to the point of Johnson's trade if Johnson hadn't been sharing time with them, we discover that Ray and Parrish would have averaged four of those seven statistical categories, equaled one, and fallen behind in only two.

Ray and Parrish would have averaged 20.7 points, 16.3 rebounds, 1.9 steals and a field shooting average of 52.6. Assists would have stayed the same.

Quite obviously, the Warriors had to hurt themselves in the shot blocking category, because Johnson has been one of the two or three best in the NBA for the past three years. At the time he left the Warriors, he was averaging 5.9 blocks every 48 minutes. The official league leader, Bill Walton, was averaging about 3.5, and runner-up Kareem Abdul-Jabbar was going at about 3.3. Thus, the Warrior shot block average without Johnson dips from 3.6 to 2.7.

Ironically, the only other category in which the loss of Johnson at center hurts the Warriors is at the free throw line, where Johnson, until this year the weakest Warrior at the line, was averaging 80.6, which put him behind only Barry and C.J. Johnson. So, that theoretically drops from the 63.5 with Johnson to 60.4 without him.

SUDDEN THOUGHT: It occurs to us that baseball owners are ganging up on Charley Finley, and it's not fair, even if he may deserve it. I can't think of any circumstance under which Bowie Kuhn might have been right in denying Finley his right to deal off his own players in accordance to accepted baseball law. I can't think of an owner who wouldn't have yelled as long and as loud or sued for less than Finley did had Kuhn done to them what he did to Finley.

Playoff Contests Skyline Snaps a String Begin

There were three cliffhangers and one rout Monday in North Peninsula League basketball action as teams begin scrambling for playoff spots.

League-leading Jefferson steamrolled last place Terra Nova 67-47 to maintain its two-game bulge over second-place Westmoor.

Meanwhile, in three tightly contested games, Westmoor edged Oceana 53-51, South San Francisco held off El Camino 53-50 and Serramonte nipped Half Moon Bay 72-71.

Westmoor-Oceana Mike Burns' follow shot with four seconds remaining gave the Rams their narrow victory.

Oceana's Randy Crowder had given the Sharks a tie with 1:48 left. Westmoor then took control and stalled away most of the remaining time until missing a shot from the corner with 10 seconds left. Burns, then muscled the rebound in for the win.

Burns led all scorers with 15 points. Also hitting double figures for the Rams was Mark Navarro with 12 points, Jack Dorn with 11 and Chris Tuesday 11.

Conrad Simon paced Oceana with 14 points and Jim McCrary added 13.

HMB-Serramonte The Regents subdued a game Half Moon Bay squad which rallied from a nine-point deficit after three quarters to nearly win it in the final seconds.

Serramonte put the game away with eight seconds left on a pair of free throws by Marty Feil, giving the Regents a three-point lead. HMB's Barry Short hit a meaningless shot just before the buzzer.

A combination of things did in the Cougars. Namely, free throws and Ricky Mixon.

HMB connected on only seven of 20 free throw attempts. At the other end, Mixon was canning a variety of shots on his way to a 29-point evening.

El Camino-SSF Balanced scoring was the key as South San Francisco subdued its cross-town rival.

Guard Larry Grubbe led the Warriors with 12 points. Also aiding the cause were Johnny Jones with 11, Paul Wintroath with nine and Scott Ergas eight.

For El Camino Kenny Rhodes and Bill Kennedy led the Colts' effort once again. Rhodes topped with 17 points and Kennedy contributed 14.

Jefferson-Terra Nova Guard Steve Vasquez, who twisted an ankle in last week's loss to Serramonte, didn't show the effects against an outmanned Terra Nova club.

BACKCOURT BATTLE

Menlo College's playmaking guard Mike Stockwell (right) tries to dribble past the defense of Skyline's Dave Davis. Davis was a demon all night for the triumphant Trojans. He hit 10 of 18 shots from the field, scoring 23 points despite close defense by Menlo's Kurt Townsend. Davis dished out five assists, and also was active on the boards. Skyline, with the 63-50 win, dropped Menlo's home court record to 71-2.

By FRED BAER

Post Correspondent

The prospect appeared awesome. Menlo College had not lost at home in 26 games over three seasons and had a 71-1 home court record over six seasons with Bud Presley at the helm.

So how did Skyline College make Saturday night's 63-50 victory over the Oaks almost appear like a "home" victory for the Trojans?

• By a quirk in scheduling, the game was played during semester break. Most of private Menlo's boarding students had taken off. So Skyline, as a community college drawing mainly from County residents, had at least as many fans present as the Oaks. Perhaps more. (At least the Trojans were more vocal.)

• Skyline's two-three zone defense and patterned fast-break offense took advantage of every early Menlo error for leads of 10-2 and 21-4 from which the slow paced Oaks never fully recovered.

• Skyline coach Lyle Newcomer had earlier, in his first season, done something no other coach has ever accomplished — beaten a Presley team in the Oakpit (on January 11, 1975 to end a 47-game streak that included two games prior to the Presley era).

• Presley was called for his first technical foul in 20 years, for wandering too far out on the court just when the Oaks were making their biggest rally of the game.

• Statistically each team got 24 rebounds and 47 shots — but Skyline made 27 of them (58 per cent) to 23 (49 per cent) for the Oaks.

• "In order to beat them we've got to get even or ahead early," said Presley after the game. "We're not going to extend their zone when they're sitting on a 17-point lead. And we have to get the ball inside consistently. We did that early but we couldn't hit."

"They had trouble getting the ball to Trobpe," noted Skyline's only big man, 6-5 Mark Felix, of Menlo's 6-7 center Steve Trobpe from Larkspur.

And at times when Trobpe and 6-5 Australian teammate Colin Heard did get the ball inside, they were out of position to shoot. The only first half points by either man was a lay-up by Trobpe for Menlo's initial basket, four minutes into the game, for a 2-2 tie.

That was just after Skyline guard Dave Davis had broken up the Menlo delay offense with a steal and fast break jumper for the game's first score.

Those early proceedings told the story.

Skyline turned interceptions and other Oak turnovers into quick scores — a corner jumper by forward Joe Adams, lay-ups by guard Ted Scott and a high post jumper by Felix.

Three Adams interceptions led directly to early baskets and the soph from Washington High (San Francisco) was also the game's leading rebounder with 11.

Davis, besides hitting 10 of 18 from the field for game scoring honors with 23 points, contributed five assists.

"Davis is a major college prospect," raved Presley about the Trojan frosh from Pasadena. "But I still felt (Kurt) Townsend did a heck of a job on him."

"We did what we wanted to do," said Newcomer. We thought they'd go inside. And we defended them well. They were exceptionally cold in the first half. But the second half showed it was a very false lead we had."

Menlo made only five of 15 first half shots and trailed 28-11 at the intermission, as Skyline hit on 14 of 26.

A lay-up and a jumper by Trobpe got Menlo off on the right foot in the second half. Then, with Heard finally connecting and guard Mike Hart hitting from the corners, the Oaks kept inching closer — finally to within eight at 42-34 with 9:53 left following a pair of corner set shots by Townsend.

The Oaks got the ball back but had the ball knocked out of bounds under their own basket. Presley, a bit anxious to give some instructions to guard Mike Stockwell before the inbound pass, wandered a bit too far onto the floor (near the circle) and was called for a technical.

Scott turned that into a three-point play for the Trojans, making one of two technical shots and then hitting his sixth field goal of the game.

Menlo traded buckets with Skyline until Jim Donovan led a six-point Trojan streak for a 55-40 edge with 5:12 left. And that was the basic margin until Menlo's too-late six-point surge brought it back to 59-50 with 53 seconds to go.

Skyline then closed out the scoring at the charity stripe.

Since Menlo had been upset at Cabrillo a week ago, Skyline (at 6-0) completed the first half of Coast Conference play two games ahead of the 4-2 Oaks. No other league team is above .500 — with Monterey Peninsula, Gavilan and Cabrillo, at 3-3, battling for the two remaining spots in the league playoffs.

Both county teams are at home Wednesday night, with Menlo entertaining Monterey and Skyline hosting the league's disappointment to date, Hartnell (1-5).

Chope Transfer Plan Board Balks At Health Pact

The San Mateo County Board of Supervisors balked Tuesday at approving an agreement with Peninsula Hospital which would waive the mandatory transfer to Chope Community Hospital of county patients admitted to Peninsula on an emergency basis.

County Director of Health and Welfare Dr. George Pickett reported that Peninsula Hospital is not willing to agree to the county's policy mandating the transfer of a county patient as soon as his or her condition stabilizes after an emergency episode.

A non-transfer provision would enable eligible patients brought to Peninsula for emergency care to obtain necessary, complete care, assure better continuity of care beyond the emergency and avoid costly ambulance transfer, Pickett said.

An agreement similar to that proposed for Peninsula Hospital was approved with Mary's Help Hospital earlier this month.

The Board of Supervisors adopted a policy several years ago mandating transfer of county patients admitted to other hospitals on an emergency basis after the medical staff at Chope complained that retaining the patients would cut the census at Chope and add a talking point to those who advocate the closing of the hospital as an acute medical care institution.

Pickett said Peninsula officials don't want the mandatory transfer provision because they feel, and he agrees, that "it is bad medicine" to transfer a patient as soon as possible after emergency treatment.

What Peninsula is saying to the county is that to patch a person up, administer I.V.'s and load him in an ambulance to take him to Chope Hospital is bad medicine," Pickett stated. Supervisor Fred Lyon inquired why, with the county within two months of making a decision on future health care services for the county, is the proposed contract coming before the board?

Pickett replied that there has been an extended period of negotiations with the hospital which just happened to reach a climax at the present time.

Supervisor William H. Royer said he objected to the mandatory transfer provision. His motion to approve the proposed agreement failed to receive a second, however.

Board Chairman John Ward temporarily gave up the chair to make a motion that the matter be continued one week to allow the Department of Health and Welfare staff to meet with Peninsula officials to determine if some interim agreement can be reached pending a final decision on the future status of Chope Hospital.

Supervisor James V. Fitzgerald stated that the board should then set a definite date for decision on the health care system. Ward objected to including a definite date in his motion, stating that it is a

Tarshes' Final Session

San Mateo County Manager M.D. "Marty" Tarshes attended his final meeting of the county Board of Supervisors in his official capacity Tuesday, received the accolades of board members and was given the afternoon off by his bosses.

Tarshes has resigned effective Jan. 31. His successor, David Nichols of Santa Rosa, will report for work Feb. 1.

Tarshes may have resigned, but he certainly did not retire.

Following a two-month holiday which will include "getting some things done around the house" and a trip to the Hawaiian island of Maui with his wife, Jeanette, Tarshes will take on part-time jobs as a management consultant, teaching and doing volunteer work.

"My wife has calculated it as three half-time jobs," Tarshes said Tuesday.

Tarshes said he will join —See TARSHEs, Page 17.

Special Supervisor Unit OK

San Mateo County Supervisor Edward J. Bacciocco's proposal that a blue ribbon committee be asked to help determine a method of setting supervisors' salaries was approved by a 4 to 1 vote Tuesday.

The board has been criticized for pegging its salaries on a percentage of salaries paid Superior Court judges. The board's present salaries (60 per cent of that paid judges) are $28,516 a year, highest for any board of supervisors in the state.

The County Grand Jury recommended recently that the board freeze its salaries at last year's level for a period of two years. However, Dist. Atty. Keith C. Sorenson ruled that the county charter prohibits such action.

Bacciocco said that a blue ribbon committee named by community groups and organizations could suggest a method of setting future salaries which would be "fair, above reproach and out of our power to control."

He asserted that for the board to set its own salaries without public consultation aggravates public distrust.

"Instead of acting in the name of the people, we should act through the people," he stated.

Supervisor William H. Royer, who voted against the blue ribbon committee proposal, said he has asked Sorenson to prepare an ordinance which would eliminate the salary peg on judge's salaries and would base supervisors' salaries on the cost of living, not to exceed 5 per cent a year, beginning Jan. 1, 1979.

Royer said he is opposed to any further studies.

He noted that the Grand Jury currently is in the process of making a full review of supervisors' duties, and he says that should be sufficient.

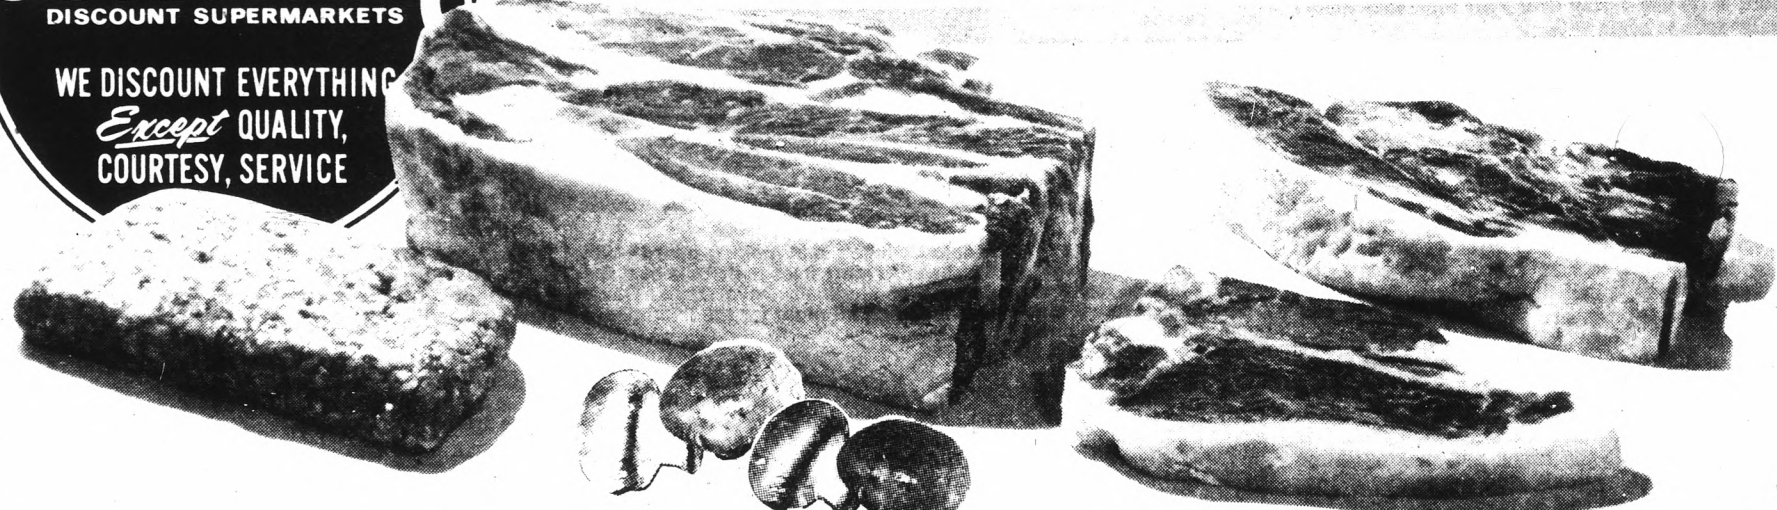

"The Constitution requires us to set our salaries," he observed. "No one knows better than we do if we earn our salaries. I feel they (salaries) aren't over and above what we're earning... we should not have to defend the amount of money paid for this position."

In his proposal, Bacciocco recommended that the blue ribbon committee consist of members appointed by a citizen's property tax association, an executive business group (such as the Governmental Research Council), the San Mateo County Labor Council, the League of Women Voters, the Citizens Task Force on County Governmental Operations, the 1975-76 and the current grand juries and the San Mateo County Newspaper Publishers Association.

If the Sheriff Should Pay a Call . . .

By JOHN HORGAN
Post Staff Writer

The San Mateo County Jail is certainly not the Ritz. It is not listed in any travelers' guide to America's better lodging spots.

There are no bellhops. There is no complimentary coffee in the morning. The Gideon Bible is optional. So is room service.

Still, the jail is rapidly developing a heady guest list of notables.

In the recent past, the jail has housed such biggies as Bill and Emily Harris, Sarah Jane Moore and Patricia Hearst.

The fabled Brink's person, Richard Rees, may one day end up there for a spell.

But the jail's most unusual client is yet to come. And Sheriff John McDonald, the fellow who runs the jail, has mixed feelings about it.

And who can blame him? How would you like to be faced with imprisoning another sheriff?

That is what could well happen in the Redwood City facility in the near future.

San Francisco Sheriff Richard Hongisto has been ordered to spend five days in this county's slammer because he failed to carry out an eviction notice at a San Francisco hotel.

Hongisto is appealing the decision.

The judge doesn't want Hongisto to serve his term behind bars at a San Francisco jail. Rather, he trusts this county to make Hongisto feel more at home.

And that's only right. The suburbs have long been a haven for San Francisco's masses.

So why shouldn't its sheriff do time in our jail? It only makes good sense.

But McDonald, for obvious reasons, isn't exactly looking forward to the day when Hongisto is brought to Redwood City.

"This is kind of unusual," says McDonald. "But, then, we've been getting a lot of unusual people here lately."

McDonald, ever the proper host, says he plans to make certain that his San Francisco peer doesn't have to mingle with the other inmates of the institution.

"This is a big place," McDonald says. "He won't mix with the other prisoners."

Hongisto will be segregated from the others if and when he comes here.

Which only makes sense. Why tempt fate in this ticklish situation?

McDonald says the judge asked beforehand whether the county would be willing to put up Hongisto during his jail tenure.

McDonald agreed with the idea. "Someone had to do it," he offers in his pragmatic way.

He says he has never had a sheriff in custody before under any circumstances.

"I've never even had a high-ranking police officer in my jail before," he adds.

The judge was looking for a place to put him and I agreed to it."

Hongisto has been a persistent critic of San Francisco's jail facilities, especially the big county jail in the woods of San Bruno near Skyline College.

That could have been one reason why the judge decided not to intern the city's sheriff in San Bruno.

Will Hongisto find fault with the Redwood City jail? Could be. He might not like the accommodations one whit.

I understand the bellhops there are positively uncivil.

Hiring of Aide Is Approved

As a compromise, the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors Tuesday approved by a 4-1 vote the hiring of a social worker on a temporary basis to assist in services involving abused and neglected children.

Workers in the Dependent Children's Section of the Social Services Division had requested two additional workers, contending that the heavy caseload made it difficult, if not impossible, to provide necessary services.

Dr. Howard Gurevitz, assistant director of the Department of Health and Welfare, contended, on the other hand, that the present staff could handle the workload, especially in view of the fact that the Dependent Children's Section is in the process of closing out 68 cases and the number of new cases coming to the division has dropped from 50 last July to 10 in recent months because of diversion to other protective services.

Gurevitz added that "the quality of care can be debated without limit."

He said he believes the level of care in San Mateo County is "adequate — it could be better, but all we do could be better."

Nell Watson, a social worker in the Dependent Children's Section, asserted that there are 33 new cases in the section which can't be adequately taken care of because of other assignments given to workers, especially the process of closing out cases.

With board members leaning toward the hiring of a single temporary worker, Supervisor James V. Fitzgerald voiced his objection, pointing out that Gurevitz had said the present staff can handle the situation.

He said that when the board cut back on budget allocations last summer, it warned the staff that it would have to work within the limitations.

"It's not up to the board to destroy orders given the staff," Fitzgerald stated. "If they say they can do the job, then we should support them."

the San Francisco accounting and management consulting firm of Ernst & Ernst April 1, specializing in governmental aspects. In June, he will begin teaching at night in the graduate public administration program at Golden Gate University in San Francisco.

Also, Tarshes said, he plans to do volunteer work in tax reform for the County Supervisors Association of California, as well as performing tasks for the National Association of Counties and the International City Management Association.

"It will be a change of pace," Tarshes said. "I won't be managing or running anything."

Tarshes, who has been county manager since 1969, warned the board that he intends to "look on with great interest as a citizen and taxpayer of San Mateo County, and I wish you to do your best to keep taxes down."

Several county department heads and members of Tarshes's staff slipped into the board chambers as Chairman John M. Ward noted that it was the manager's final board meeting in his official capacity.

All board members joined in the accolades, as did Asst. County Manager Max Meyer.

Samuel Chandler

What? A shopping center on El Camino in Colma!

The thoughts of it are bitter, repulsive, revolting, intolerable. In all of San Mateo County there is no area more unique than Colma.

Robert Ripley featured it in his Believe It Or Not.

The Writers Program of the Works Progress Administration called the Colma complex "a land of beautifully landscaped acres."

John P. Dangle, executive vice president of the American Cemetery Association, writes that there is no other cemetery complex like Colma in the United States.

A shopping center in Colma where little streams descend through acres of flowers and manicured lawns, where tombs are raised to the memory of California's pioneers, where even the railroad lines have been transformed by the magic of trees and flowers?

The thought of it heats our blood and sticks in our gizzards like the foul taste of scandal and blame. Ye Gods, is nothing beyond the reach of grasping fingers.

EVEN AS THE ISSUE is being debated by the Colma council, papers have been filed to have the cemeteries listed in the National Register of Historic Places.

Even as the proprietors of K Marts dream of their projects, a national board wonders if the listing of the Colma burial grounds in tourist guides is not a violation of the rights of the people who laid their loved ones to rest in Colma.

What about a shopping center in Colma by Cypress Lawn Cemetery and near the lovely Colma City Hall? Does that not violate the same rights? It hurts our sense of propriety, if nothing else. No wonder Oregon bumper stickers urge developers to refrain from "Californication" their state.

What of Colma itself?

If a shopping center is built on El Camino, it will be the first of many commercial ventures that will eat up the land and its beauty. Already, a sign is posted across El Camino from the site of the proposed shopping center. "For lease," it reads,

"will build to suit, 500 ft. of El Camino frontage plus 8,500 square feet in rear parcel." The site being offered is in front of the beautiful Home of Peace Cemetery and in front of a field of flowers.

SINCE PATTY BROOKS and his associates settled there in 1853, Colma citizens have been fighting to maintain the integrity of one of the last garden spots on El Camino. For more than 70 years, Colma residents have rejected bids to join a bigger city in Northern San Mateo County, because they feared incorporation would place their land under a bulldozer's wheels.

A shopping center in Colma!

It must make Colma's first mayor, Mattrup Jensen, turn over in his grave.

With just pride he wrote, "I have been instrumental in making one spot on this world a little more beautiful than I found it."

For Mattrup Jensen, that spot was Colma. He was its first mayor and one of its greatest.

At 83 years of age, he breathed a prayer for Colma.

"I have also written the history of the cemetery area, Colma. And I hope that posterity never will mar its beauty."

We hope so too.

Inner Peace Movement Message

That you are psychic is the message of the Inner Peace Movement, a non-profit, non-sectarian, educational program geared to help man unfold his psychic potential and find inner fulfillment in life.

The purpose of the Inner

Peace Movement is to share with the individual tools and techniques to help him find his niche in life and to gain a greater understanding of himself and his purpose here on earth.

The concepts of the movement that will be discussed in a lecture they will be holding February 8 in Daly City's Serrano Library, 40 Wembley Dr.

The 1 1/2-hour lecture will begin at 7:30 p.m. There will be a $1.50 admission fee.

According to the movement, each individual possesses the four spiritual gifts of prophecy, feeling, intuition, and vision. Although each of us can develop these gifts to their fullest, everyone communicates mainly through one of these gifts.

The prophetic type of person has the gift of trance and the ability to look into the future through an inner "knowing" about things. He is very creative and skilled in handling several projects at the same time and because of this ability he can make an outstanding executive.

The feeling type of individual has the gift of healing and is often drawn to the healing professions. He has the ability to "feel" what other people feel, and because of this he is often sympathetic and patient with others. He enjoys being with people and mixes well. Since he is very sensitive to his own and others' feelings, it is difficult for him to take criticism or to discipline others. He does not like a leadership position but rather, needs a guideline for everything he does.

The visionary type of person has the gift of clairvoyance or clear seeing. He can pick up the thoughts of others and is often inspired by his own creative ideas. He is a natural born leader and really enjoys a challenge. When this person is out of balance within himself, he often becomes a bully or withdraws completely from others. He is an intellectual type of person to whom "understanding" is all important.

The visionary type of person has the gift of clairvoyance or clear seeing. When highly developed in his gift he is able to see the aura or energy pattern around another person. Generally, he has a photographic mind and often thinks in mental pictures.

"Seeing" is all important to this person, and he needs an attractive environment to work in. Personally his appearance is important to him, and he expects this in others. Once he "sees" the big picture, he can effectively move in and organize a project.

Councilman Says Staff in Pacifica Dragging Feet

Pacifica staff members are dragging their feet over work that should have been accomplished months ago, Councilman Staaf Farber charges.

Farber said at this week's meeting that City Manager Don Weidner and his employees use the excuse that they are short of help whenever it's convenient.

"When staff wants something done... they can get it done very quickly," Farber said.

Weidner said he accepted the criticism as constructive, and added that his staff could re-evaluate its priorities.

Farber's criticism came as the council discussed adding the position of building maintenance worker to the city payroll.

The council decided during budget hearings last year to hire a private janitorial service to maintain buildings, eliminating 3.5 permanent city positions.

But the council agreed on Jan. 10 to temporarily retain a senior building maintenance worker to get rooms ready for meetings and to meet other daily needs.

Farber protested that there are other staffing needs which should have been handled first.

"They should take the first one first, and this is not the first one," Farber said.

Weidner said his staff is under pressure to produce and there are only four employees in his office. But he agreed to re-evaluate priorities, if that's what the council wants.

The council approved the maintenance worker position at a monthly salary of $902 to $1,070.
